3. Discussion:

a. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the Westinghouse revised proposal for the AN/APQ-56 radar set. The first topic discussed was the fiscal aspect of the proposal. After some discussion the Westinghouse figures were accepted as submitted.

b. The problem of spares and test equipment was presented to [redacted]. He stated that the Westinghouse suggestions as to numbers and types of items was acceptable as a preliminary arrangement and that future operational requirements (number of bases, missions etc.) would dictate additional procurement. It was felt that the present equipment and spares would suffice for a year's operation of 2-3 aircraft from a single base.

c. The problem of the total number of items to be procured was also discussed. The Westinghouse proposal broke the procurement down into 4 sections:

- (1) 4 AN/APQ-56 units
 - (2) Maintenance tools and equipment
 - (3) Spares parts
 - (4) 2 Receiver-transmitters
